1. There was a cactus in a beautiful garden. It was surrounded by beautiful flowers like rose, sunflower, daisy and chrysanthemum. All these flowers kept cribbing about the cactus that it was very 6 and spoiling the beauty of the garden. The poor cactus was very sad. Once, there was a severe drought in that kingdom. Everyone left the place. Nobody was there to water the plants, and the flowers were dying. Then, the cactus offered them water from its stem. It had plenty of water stored in its stem. All the flowers drank that water and survived. When it started raining, the gardener came back. He thought his plants had died. But, when he saw the flowers swaying happily in the breeze, he understood that it was because of the cactus. All the flowers felt sorry for their behaviour and became friends with the cactus.
